

Picking a Tool for Docs and Discussion with RSS

Discussion created by Jo Nelson on 3/11/2009 8:20 AM

Jo Nelson

Posted by Jo Nelson on 3/11/2009 8:20 AM (85 weeks ago)

This tool so fare seems to be free, able to hold docs and discussion, and has rss capacity. I'm still in exploration mode.

Jo Nelson

Posted by Jo Nelson on 3/11/2009 8:39 AM (85 weeks ago)

I also see that it seems to have email notification as well. Let's see how that works, too.

Ethan Mings

Posted by Ethan Mings on 5/10/2009 2:39 PM (77 weeks ago)

Please feel free to try NewsGator for a variety of RSS Software options. You can find choices for Mac, Windows and Blackberry. Here is the link

<http://www.newsgator.com/individuals/default.aspx>

When I'm working on portal work or doing research, I do it all through Feeddemon. That way I can tag RSS Feeds, catch up on portal work and keep up to to date on project files.

This saves me time from switching from browser to reader.

BTW, Outlook 2007 has RSS built into the software as well as Pocomail for windows.

Jerry